E. B. MURRAY, Editor. THURSDAY MORNING, AUG. 14, 1879.

The Nihilists are giving to Russia considerable trouble, and unless Russia changes the inhuman treatment of these misguided fanatics she will array the civilized world against her and create a sympathy for those she would crush. The organization of the Nihilists seems to be secret and powerful, and the right of Russia to adopt adequate measures to suppress it must be conceded, yet, in the execution of those measures, humanity

Barnwell People: The work on the Barnwell Railroad is progressing. Mr. Woodward has hired a large extra force and is pushing the work rapidly forward. By the last of the week over a mile of the track will be laid......A committee of the grand jury of Barnwell County is now sitting at Barnwell during vacation. There is ne authori., for such a body known to our law, and we are sorry to see the valuable time of the gentlemen composing it thus wasted.

Spartanburg Spartan: Mr. Coleman Wingo died at the advanced age of eighty-four Thursday, the 24th of July. He was a soldier of the war of 1812. He quietly passed away with the esteem of all his neighbors. On the same day Mrs. Pleasant Wingo, wife of Paschal Wingo, died. She was a daughter of Capt. John Ballenger. These two persons were both buried the same day at Mt. Zion Church. GREENVILLE, S. C., August 2.
The condition of the Republican party in South Carolina is deplorable. The who lives about ten miles east of this place, in Laurens County, lost his barn on the night of the 6th instant, by an incendiary fire. Four mules, one horse, five calves and one hurdred chickens were burned. A colored boy named Sam Mattison has been arrested, and has confessed that he did the burning. He tied the mules together to keep them from being saved. He also confesses to have burned 200 bales of cotton last winter, which is supposed to have been the lot burnt at Newberry on the Greenville and Columbia Railroad. It is rumored that he also admitted that he had burned some house in Abbeville County.

FILIUS DELORIS. Another of the old colored leaders, who bears a good reputation for honesty and veracity, said: "Our only saivation lies in the election of either

He expressed himself utterly disgusted with the men who still claim the authority to control the actions of Republicans in the State, and asserted that they do not represent either the intelligence or the honesty of the party. "Think," said he "of a set of delegates to represent us in the next national convention who are chosen through the instrumentality of such men as R. B. Elliott! Could't they be bought by anybody? We must wait," he continued, "until opportunities favor us. Nothing can be gained by ill-considered haste, and

THE SOUTH CAROLINA RADICALS. much may be lost. Republican triumphs in New York and Ohio this fall will in-fuse new life into the Republicans in the Southern States, and kind words from our Northern and Western friends will

Another member of the legal fraternity who at one time exercised much influence among up-country Republicans, said:
"If I thought we had the slightest prospect of success, I would pull off my coat and start in, but I can't see what good I could accomplish in my own behalf or for anyin South Carolina is deplorable. The leaders, with few exceptions, are utterly dejected. Many who, in the palmy days of the Scott and Moses administrations, were reveling in luxury, are actually in want of the common necessaries of life; their worst enemy could not devise a worse fate than has befallen them. The cally members of the Central Executive surprising to me that they do not go one step further and abolish elections altogether. I labored for the Republican party until I was almost ruined financially. My practice, which is gradually coming back to me since I minded my own business only, was taken from me, and old college friends would pass me by without recognition. Everybody knew we carried the election in 1876, and yet our Northern friends deserted us and consigned us to the tender mercles of our enemies. No, thank you! I have enough for the present,".

The United States District Attorney

was Dustity engaged at his office prepar-ing cases for the United States District Court, to be held at Greenville on the last Monday in August. He expressed his views without the least reserve. "I woe" should reach the public, but, fearing annoyance and possibly prosecution, they begged in almost every instance that their names, unless specially demanded, should be withheld.

One of the most intelligent colored men in the State, who was one of the Hayes electors, and is at present a member of the State Executive Committee, and whose veracity is not doubted, even by Democrats, in the place where he resides, said: "We"—meaning the Executive Committee—"have had no formal meetings since last summer, when we refused to endorse the Hampton administration, but some of us have met an odd times for President and Vice President will be elected without our assistance. I believe that Ohio and Maine will go Republican this fall, the former by at least 10,000 majority, which will give us new strength. I believe we will have a working majority in the next House of Representatives, and I further believe that we will have a majority of one in the United States Senate in 1884. Much depends, however, on the next ceasus, and the government ought to appoint none but the most trustworthy Republicans as casus takers."

From close observation, and from conversations with the most intelligent pol-versations with the most intelligent politicians in the Charleston, Beaufort and Williamsburg districts, with reasonable chances, ought to elect Republican Congressmen at the next general election. In the Fourth and Fifth districts Republicans are powerless but ith the Fourth and Fifth districts Republicans are powerless, but with proper organization and the necessary protection, they could be induced to poll a full vote for electors. Recent appointments to subordinate positions in Federal offices have aroused considerable dissatisfaction. It is claimed that friends of local politicians were imported from adjoining States to fill offices which could have been more creditably filled by deserving Republicated. creditably filled by deserving Republi-cans of this State. The Charleston Cus-tom House appointments especially are severely criticised, and from several cases cited there seem to be some grounds for the complaints.

Mr. B. D. Gullett, Amite City, Le.—Dear Sir: Last season I purchased nine of your Seventy and Eighty Saw Gin Stands, which have given satisfaction, and I think make a better sample of cotton than any Gin Stand I have used. I am running thirty-eight Gin Stands by steam power, among them are E. Carver's, Eagle, Champion and Pratt's—all good Gin Stands.

I expect shortly to give you an order for three more Gin Stands, believing them to be the best made. The four feeders you put in for me on my Greenfield place, Lake Washington, give good satisfaction, saving two bands in ginning, besides making the supply of cotton more regular than ean be done by hand. Yours, very truly.
